My Passionate Pursuit

“Who do you think you are?” is a popular documentary shown on SBS, where a celebrity, with the help of genealogists and historians, unravels some of their family history in front of the TV cameras.

It has reportedly increased interest in genealogy and family history in the countries where the series is shown and made.

My interest in family history began as a child when my Grandpa showed me the family tree he had put together – not just squares and lines, names and dates, but the realization that each person shown in a box was part of me.

I think there is probably a little bit in all of us that is curious about who we are and where we’ve come from. But why do we want to know and remember those who have gone before and how does that affect us?

We tell our stories to encourage ourselves and others.

We tell our stories to remember.

We tell our stories to remember who we are.

Perhaps, most significantly, we tell our stories to remember WHOSE we are.
